

January 10, 1996

term would be, again or less hostile, and then it seems like we're going to function in a nice, easy-going way. That may happen and it may not. But even when we reach that turn of events my determination has not changed. I still intend to give back to the Legislature what the Legislature gives to me. If the Legislature as a whole tries to hurt the interests of my constituents I'm going to give it back to get at your constituents and that's what I'm going to do. This Legislature probably couldn't survive if there were two black people in it such as myself. You all are lucky that with all my arrogance I don't possess the power of one of the simplest life forms, which is the amoeba. I cannot divide myself and be in more than one place at the same time so the amoeba has me beat on that. But if it comes to a discussion of the rules of the Legislature I'll take on the amoeba, the paramecium and all the rest of them put together and outdo them. Senator Withem says that he thinks that this might be a good thing to let the Speaker schedule the order of amendments and motions to be considered. He perceives himself as being a fair just individual. Even as good as Senator Withem is and, in my opinion, most of the time he's pretty good, there are other people who see Senator Withem...

SENATOR CROSBY: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...as being venial in his approach and some have attacked him on the floor, and there are people who see me as venial in my approach. So we perceive ourselves differently in most instances from the way that others do and I'm not willing to trust Senator Withem, "God Osborne". As much as I like and respect Senator Crosby, I wouldn't trust her with this. I wouldn't trust anybody. We are politicians. We are in politics. Everything we do is political and this would be political also, and I do not have that kind of trust.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Robak.

SENATOR ROBAK: Thank you, Madam Speaker and members of the Legislature. I have a question for Senator Beutler.

SENATOR CROSBY: Senator Beutler.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Yeah, Jennie.

SENATOR ROBAK: Senator Beutler, I listened to your last speech