

says, I'm going to support it. But between now and the time it's on Select File there is some massaging of the language that I think can be done that will get the same idea across but it will be...I'll feel more comfortable with the kind of language, not changing the thought. But I got one more thing I want to say 'cause I was talking about that...not the cardinal, this was a sparrow that's...what do you...what do you...oh, a bishop, a bishop, but he's a birdbrain in my opinion. I've been doing some investigating on why he's going to excommunicate all these people. Somebody must have spiked the wine that he drank at the last communion service because if his mind had not been clouded by wine he would have been thinking about the purposes of things that are done by officials in the church. And, as somebody called to my attention, I haven't seen him say that if you belong to the Ku Klux Klan you will be excommunicated, if you're a neo-Nazi you will be excommunicated, if you're a member of the NRA you'll be excommunicated. None of those groups that are involved in terrorizing people, in taking their lives, in defacing their property, in committing sacrilege against their churches and their cemeteries was mentioned by this bishop. I consider him to be the bishop from Hades and I'm going strictly by what he has done, and if I have any colleagues in this body who are members of the churches in Lincoln all I can do express my sympathy, my profound sympathy, for you. In fact, I feel so sorry for you, and it can't do any harm 'cause if there's no God it doesn't matter and if there is a God maybe she'll understand, I might offer up a prayer for all of you all and point out that in view of what it is you're trying to do you shouldn't have to do with...deal with such asininity. Look what is given to the nonbelievers when those who are to believe are even outraged. Why is it necessary for a nonbeliever, such as myself, to say anything because I delight in these opportunities to show how these stuffed shirts who wear these robes, these backward collars and have these positions that entitles them, in their opinion, to dictate to other people, commit such a stupid act? I cannot resist sticking a pin in the balloon, which I see most of them as being, letting the hot air out and deflating them. There is one Catholic with whom I felt a great affinity anyway. That's Randy Moody. He made me think of myself if what I read in the paper, he said, I challenge them to excommunicate me. I said, well, hallelujah, brother! And you know what, to show how much I respect Randy Moody I challenge that bishop to excommunicate me also. I challenge him to excommunicate me also. Now, to get back to the business in hand. Senator Will,
