

but there may be because we don't always pay attention. But I've got something I'm going to offer which I think you will pay attention to. This is done in the spirit of Jesus. I missed giving you something before Easter, but there's usually a little hangover after every big holiday so this is kind of an Easter hangover. It's not religious, however, but it's based on that idea of giving a little story and then drawing a lesson from it. It goes "Hi diddle, diddle, the cat and the fiddle. The cow jumped over the moon. The little dog laughed to see such sport, and the dish ran away with the spoon." Well, in this instance, the cat and the fiddle are the Legislature just sitting back there as a backdrop but having nothing to do. Who is the cow that jumped over the moon and what is the moon? Well, the cow is the Library Commission and the moon is statutory and legislative oversight. The Library Commission jumped over all that. Who is the little dog that laughed to see such sport? The Department of Motor Vehicles. They're going to gain something from all of this. So they did their laughing. Now the dish ran away with the spoon. The spoon obviously is that questionable contract which is paying an exorbitant unauthorized amount for a service which ought not to be provided in the way and under the circumstances that exist at the time under this bad contract that is being discussed. I say the dish ran away with that spoon because under the agreed to amendment their ill-gotten gains will continue to flow into their pockets, into their coffers. They could be joining the little dog in laughing at this sport because they're winning. Now the dish that ran away with the spoon is obvious in terms of identity. The dish is the term that embraces those people who are making these unconscionable profits from the sale and making electronic access available to these public records. So when you hear the "Hi diddle, diddle," the cat and the fiddle rhyme, you know that it applies perfectly to what we have before us here. I don't think the contract is valid. I don't think this rogue agency should be allowed to get away with what it has done. I've read some of the documentation and some of the comments of people who work for the state and have been employed and involved in this. There is a cavalier, arrogant, go-to-hell attitude manifested toward the Legislature because the Legislature is so easy to maneuver around. Present the Legislature with an accomplished fact and the Legislature rolls over and accepts it. In this particular situation, we know the identity of some of the people involved, some of the most high-powered lobbyists and politicians who are trying to make sure that everything stays
