body. I have had a long discussion with Senator Wickersham. And in the course of that discussion we have discussed all of the formulas that go into calculating the valuations from different perspectives. And one of the things that he has explained to me is the fact that by policy this body has set a course on separating those two valuations by choice. And I believe that he has really given me his assurance and his word that they're going to stay separated. And as such, if they maintain that separation, we are not going to see double-dipping. I'm going to hold him to his word. I'm pleased that I can support the bill. And I will follow my heart. Thank you.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator. The Chair recognizes Senator Janssen.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Thank you, Mr. President, members of the Legislature. I thought I might as well get my two cents worth in this morning too and follow suit. You know it's tough to tell a school district that they've lost over $500,000 in aid they were assuming that they were going to get. And then to be told, well, I guess you were a little too efficient, you did too good of a job, you're going to lose a little money here, that's pretty hard, hard to swallow. And I hope I am assuming this right. Senator Bohlke, if I'm wrong, would you please correct me, that this is not a shift of any kind. If we put back in the money that we had allocated for the schools, that will not mean that someone else is going to lose any money. Would you...could I have you answer that, Senator?

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Bohlke.

SENATOR BOHLKE: Senator Janssen, you are correct. But let me interject one more time, when we add in the automobile revenue, there will...some districts will look differently. But without that, without doing that automobile tax revenue, you're correct.

SENATOR JANSSEN: All right, okay. So, now when we...we will get a notification earlier, earlier in the year so that the schools who are going to be in...in...in a hurting world will be able to adjust with their staff and so on at an earlier date. Is that correct?
