ability to be flexible, but if we're going to require publication then I think that we ought to require it so everybody gets adequate notice, not just some people in some counties. Thank you.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Senator Crosby.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you, Mr. Speaker and members, and, Senator Schimek, I have great sympathy and understand exactly how you felt when you got the bad news, because if there's anything that drives all of us crazy is some kind of bureaucratic mistake, shall we call it, or whatever. But, having said that, I'll hop in here and try not to say what other people have said. I do support the Byars amendment for several reasons. In the first place, it's going to cost the counties more to send out more notices, so the counties should, you know, I think you should know whether or not ahead of time whether the counties want to do that. The second thing is that I'll have to tell you, folks, when that first one comes out in October or whenever it is, I look for my description right away, I get out my tax bill and look for Sheridan, whatever it is, to be sure that I'm not on that list. And I'm not telling DiAnna that she has to do that, but that's a habit that I've had over the years to be sure that nothing has happened. I happen to pay my taxes myself and put...put the money in my own savings account to do that because over the years, in the good old days, the original home savings and loans companies, when you made your mortgage payment, all of that payment went against the principal and interest and then, when they paid the taxes, they charged it back and, in the long run, the person who had gotten the mortgage, like I, you made a little bit of interest that way. But now they've changed that and it doesn't...they don't do that anymore so, instead of putting it into the escrow with the company, we do it ourselves and pay...and I pay them myself. But, to get away from that particular part of it, I do think that one of the things Senator Wickersham said, that he trusted his local elected officials to make good decisions, I do too, but I think this puts a political burden on them that they don't need. Who's going to sit down and say, I think they might get pressure from constituents to leave me out, don't put me in. I really do think that would be a political burden. And, my friends, we're going into the twenty-first century and you think
