Senator Chambers.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: You have 52 seconds, Senator.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Schmitt, and rather than try to start another train of thought with the 52 seconds, I will use a bit of discretion and just say thank you for offering the time.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator. The Chair recognizes Senator Byars.

SENATOR BYARS: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think we keep coming back to our current theme, and we really...we're moving away from the point of the legislation. We keep coming back to a recurring theme that Senator Chambers and Senator Schmitt are proponents of and that this is bad legislation because there is a possibility that people might be harassed. I think there are so many opportunities right now for law enforcement people to harass whoever they wish to harass if they want to take advantage of it that they really don't need another vehicle to do that. They have options to do that. They can fabricate just as easily something to pull you over for. Understand now that, and in the law as it is today, that if you're pulled over for a warning, you can't ticket on the secondary offense for seat belts. Understand this. This is very important. Senator Chambers spent a good deal of time, but before I go to that point, let me finish with Senator Schmitt. Senator Schmitt, education, you're absolutely correct, education is extremely valuable. But education has shown...has plateaued, the amount of dollars that have come into this state for education have plateaued. The amount of results that we're getting show our statistics have plateaued; if anything, we're falling backwards in usage. We need to have a deterrent, a stiff deterrent. The people of this state are law-abiding. If we put this into statute, the deterrent factor alone will raise seat belt usage, it is estimated, by 13 to 15 percent. When you raise usage by 13 to 15 percent, just by the deterrent factor, without one stop, you save lives. You save a substantial number of lives. That makes the entire piece of legislation worthwhile. You talk about parents not buckling up their children. Statistics also show us, and a point that I made on Monday, and I'll reiterate
