Remembering those that have a negative would have had a negative anyway because...or generally, I should say generally because it is due to those resources that are reported in actual data. It's just that it would have been a year later. And it's important to remember, we made the decision on motor vehicle taxes, we have 8 months here. Eventually, there will be a year of motor vehicle taxes in, and so they may get some additional revenue, but we thought this was actual data, we wanted to stick to that, and if you look at those who have negative numbers, and then you go over and look at the System Motor Vehicle Tax Receipts, and you look at the valuation, the increases in valuation, it will give you a good indication as to why that happened. And, as I said, it would happen to those districts anyway on motor vehicle taxes. It would only have been...it would have been a year later, and to a greater amount, because a year later you would have one year of motor vehicle tax, not simply 8 months. If you start at the beginning of the book under Student Numbers, there you have what happened to the cost groups, and you see that there was a reduction in the sparse groups, there was a slight reduction in the standard group. Why is that? That is because when we plugged in actual data, it shows that schools, indeed, were spending less than what we were...than the estimation. You go behind that and you see the Student Enrollments, and if you see a large, a significant number of students lost...on the first page, I happened...I am going down the column, I happened to look at Alliance. They've lost 84 students. You take that times the cost group and remember that that's going to make an impact, because that is supposed to be what happens. If you lose students, you do not get as much state aid. The very same thing as you go down those columns and look at those schools who may have gained students. The very same thing, then they get increased aid.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR BOHLKE: You then go to the next, District Valuation, which I discussed with you, and remembering, it's important to look at that. The motor vehicle receipts, we've listed that separately behind that tab when you can go down on that, and I think the rest is self-explanatory. Now let me tell you right now across the hall in 2022, we will discuss this as long as necessary. Across the hall in 2022 is the Department of
