have to actually do it themselves, and that's not what we're trying to say.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, then why don't you want to get rid of this language...

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: Because I want to have...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...that says that?

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: ...the State Patrol be involved, Senator.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So you want them involved, and the language says they must be involved, but you really don't want them involved in all of this?

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: No, that's not right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: That makes no sense, but...

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: You're reading more into it than what I am.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Schellpeper. Members of the Legislature, I can read English and I understand what Senator Schellpeper has in this amendment, if he doesn't understand it. He didn't draft the amendment. Somebody drafted it for him in conjunction with the liquor sellers. I'd like to ask somebody who might be a little more objective than I am or Senator Schellpeper a question, and I am looking at my good friend Senator Dierks who is trained in the sciences. Senator Dierks.

SENATOR CROSBY: Senator Dierks, will you yield.

SENATOR DIERKS: Yes, certainly.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Dierks, is alcohol a drug?

SENATOR DIERKS: Well, not the way that I would describe it.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, I'm...I'm talking...I'm talking to you in
