else? I mean, you're going to have to know who these are. What...is there...will there be a tape? Is there a number? I mean what if...

SENATOR BROMM: Well, under...

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: ...two days later the trail is cold already?

SENATOR BROMM: ...under the...under Senator Crosby's bill, the company that does the marketing is required to, if there's a sale, to provide a confirmation and a verification of that sale either through a written document that that person signed that ordered the merchandise, or a recording of the conversation, and the bill sets out what the elements are that have to be stated in that recording, and it states that either the consumer or the state or the county attorney's entitled to a copy of that recording. So there are two ways for them to verify it.

SENATOR COORDSEN: One minute.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Okay.

SENATOR BROMM: Yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Well, I was worried about it being one word against the other, because I think the average individual, unless they really get scammed good, are not want to...not going to want to spend money for an attorney. Obviously,...

SENATOR BROMM: Yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: ...if you want to get a thousand dollars back, you're going to have to decide is it worth X number of dollars to get it back, and so I wondered how often that will be used. So I'm just trying to get a better understanding of the bill and I...I...that's...

SENATOR BROMM: This...

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: ...that's all I...

SENATOR BROMM: I don't want to use your time, Senator Wehrbein,
