SENATOR CHAMBERS: If the liquor person had interests in some liquor establishment and wanted to sway the vote of the other commissioners or do any other thing, what difference does that make?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Well, for, I would imagine, for financial gain somewhere along the line.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Can the Banking...can the Director of Banking make any decisions or do anything that might benefit his banks?

SENATOR JANSSEN: In my opinion, Senator Chambers, if it directly affected his bank, could possibly be. I'm not saying there couldn't be. But there would be...it would be rather...I would say rather unlikely because of the fact that the whole industry usually adheres to what their interest charges are, so on and so forth, and they are regulated by the government to some extent, the FDICA (sic) or whatever it is.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, let me ask you this, Senator Janssen. If we're going to require these disclosure statements from everybody, these financial statements, would you be amenable to considering repealing the statute which would allow a person who is going to be the director of the state Department of Banking to have direct interests in banks doing business in Nebraska?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Well, if his qualifications were in banking, quite possibly he would have some interests in those banks. I don't know,...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: We...

SENATOR JANSSEN: ...Senator Chambers, but...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...we know this, but should he be prevented, he or she, we know it's going to be a he, prevented from having anything to do with the...

SENATOR COORDSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...operation of those banks in which he has an interest? Senator Landis had used the term blind trust
