Transcriber's Office

March 22, 1999 LB 149

mine would not be one of those that would change. The Governor and I probably are cooperating without either of us knowing it in the same way that Senator Jensen pointed out that I and the Attorney General were cooperating on a measure which neither the Attorney General nor I knew we were cooperating on. But when I read the Governor's letter, it indicates to me that he's paid attention to what I've been saying on his confirmations, because I always give that disclaimer that what I'm saying has nothing to do with the qualifications or suitability of the person for the job. Well, I want to read, after I get my accoutrements here like they ought to be, from the Governor's letter: "I am returning LB 149 without my signature and with my objections. My veto of LB 149 has nothing to do with the additional $19.4 million that this legislation will authorize to be distributed to Nebraska public schools under the state aid finance formula. To the contrary, had LB 149 centered solely on the issue of restoring additional funds to the school aid formula, then I would have signed the legislation into law." How many times have you all heard me say that my comments have nothing to do with the qualifications of the particular nominee; under other circumstances I would have no hesitancy about voting for such a person? Governor listens and learns. On this particular matter, the Governor is correct. He is going to be often wrong. He has been often wrong and, in my mind, inexcusably so when it comes to his appointments, but on this particular issue it shows that, in the same way that even the devil speaks truth on many occasions, the Governor will be right. I don't know what his motivations really are. Some say it's tied in with this notion of wanting to give money back to various big spenders and Senator "Quetzalcoatl" down there, Senator Quandahl to you all, is going to help put the Governor in a position to do that, and I hope that the Revenue Committee not only stands firm but votes to kill that bill so that it would take 30 votes to try to abrogate the committee system. When we think of the Legislature institutionally, we should never give over our duties, our responsibilities and our powers to anybody. We should not willingly and voluntarily give over to an automatic system, whether it's a computer, a formula, or a board or agency, the duty and responsibility that we have to study serious matters and make independent decisions that are appropriate to that situation. I have not told anybody why I have voted in the way that I have, but I've been on the short
