Transcriber's Office

March 24, 1999 LB 476

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR KIEL: ...25 percent, while the violent crime rate for the lax states dropped 11 percent. New York and California, the two most populous states and the ones with strict concealed carry weapons licensing laws, experienced dramatic decreases in violent crime over the five-year period. New York experienced a 38.6 percent decline and California experienced a 28.7 percent decline, both without putting more concealed handguns on their streets. And we know in the state of New York a big reason for the decline in violent crime, besides the improved economy, was better enforcement. Putting more guns on the street does not result in less crime; better enforcement does. Thank you.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator. For further discussion on the Chambers amendment to the first section of the committee amendments, LB 476, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President and members of the Legislature, Senator Janssen and I have been having discussions which are far more rational than I think what happen when we're talking about the bill itself, but at some point some of what we've talked about may see the form of an amendment. But I'd like to ask him a question.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Janssen, would you yield?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Janssen, I'm going to get back to this fee, but I want to ask you a question from page 13, because you listed some of the things that are involved in the training that a person would receive. Now, are you looking on page 13?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: In line 18, subsection or subdivision (d), letter (d), it says...

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yes.
