done, if it's a private vehicle it cannot be done. There is no rational basis for that kind of distinction, is there, in view of what our intention is?

SENATOR BROMM: Well, the only.... Again, the rationale, and I'm not going to take very much of your time, but I'll give you some, if I take too much. The only rationale that I can articulate is again the difference between the possible risk based on who's driving the vehicle. That is a rationale that I can make, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Have you heard it rumored that the driver for Princess Diana may, himself, have...

SENATOR BROMM: Right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...tasted of the grape or the barley.

SENATOR BROMM: I...and I thought of that when you first raised the question. Now, whether he was doing that in the vehicle, or...or whether it was prior to getting in and driving the vehicle, I don't know.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Right, and we will never know.

SENATOR BROMM: Right, right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So, if we really are interested in the principle that drives this notion of not having open alcoholic containers in these vehicles, that principle should lead us to say that it will not be allowed in any vehicles. Don't you think that would really be what we would say?

SENATOR BROMM: Well, if we were not...it depends a little bit on political reality as well, Senator Chambers. You...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: If we get away from the political reality...

SENATOR BROMM: If you get away from political reality, yeah.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...and look at the principle.
