be a fund, but then the tax liability is created on...on the...

SENATOR HARTNETT: At the end.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: ...at the end for them to pay,...

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: ...at that point.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: And I recognize you're getting increasing difficulty in recruiting. So I don't want to be considered anti here at all, I just kind of want to understand a little more the bill and maybe refresh my mind from last year. But the other thing is the current fisc...what would you consider an updated current fiscal note now, if we were to put in $100 at the state level? Which I understand you said a maximum of 100?

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah, that's right, Senator.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: And how many members are across the state?

SENATOR HARTNETT: Well,...

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: I know I heard you say 492 departments, I think.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Yeah. And what they... In the fiscal note from last year, Senator Wehrbein, and that was a fiscal note that we had this year, it says there will be...your Fiscal Office estimates there is between 8,000 and 10,000 active emergency responders in the state. The fiscal note assumes, that makes an assumption, I don't know who, Kate Morris assumed that 80 to 90 of eligible political subdivisions would opt into the program, and that 70 to 80 of the volunteers would be eligible for the service credit each year. And the last year the costs of $250 would be from 1.1 million to 1.8 million. And we estimate now, with this...with $100, Senator Wehrbein, if our arithmetic is correct, is probably from...probably from 500,000 to 720...720 at the...720,000 at the...
