imposed would be the standard against which all future death penalty cases would be compared. However, such a construction for all practical purposes, amounts to a repeal of the death penalty, because, as the court recognized, sentencing cannot be conducted with mathematical certainty.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Time. Mr. Clerk, do you have items for the record?

CLERK: Mr. President, Senator Bruning, an amendment to LB 76; Senator Bromm to LB 150. Two appointments from the Governor to be referred to Reference. And Revenue will have an Executive Session at 12:15, Mr. President, in Room 1524. That's all that I have. (Legislative Journal pages 1561-1566.)

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Mr. Clerk. Senator Coordsen.

SENATOR COORDSEN: In view of the time, I would move that we recess for lunch.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: The question is, shall we recess until 1:30? Those in favor say aye. Those opposed nay. We are recessed.
