

TRANSCRIPT PREPARED BY THE CLERK OF THE LEGISLATURE
Transcriber's Office

April 22, 1999 LB 835

been far less than fun and the result of losing the weekly battle far more times than winning it has led to the deterioration of marketing practices throughout the industry. These are the kind of things we're trying to correct and things we're trying to solve for our producers. The...the reporting date, by delaying it for 45 days, will in effect give the Department of Agriculture an opportunity to...to receive some of the funding, as I understand it, from the packers to help develop their forms and their reporting system, and so that's one of the reasons that I accepted the amendment. With that, I'm going to...I'll give the rest of my time, Mr. President, to Senator Chambers. I, gosh, he isn't even here. He was wanting...he wanted my time the last time. Well...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Chambers, Senator Dierks would like to yield you some time, if you want it.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Dierks. Mr. President and members of the Legislature, nothing that I'm saying now is designed to hurt this bill or the action that the Legislature is undertaking. How much time to I have, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: You have two minutes and ten seconds, sir.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay, that will give me long enough to mangle a joke that Senator...well, "Baron" Tyson is not here, but I wrote a long rhyme based on it. There was this king who had a guy come to him and this guy told the king that he would...he would teach this horse how to fly in a year, and people came to him and said, that's crazy, you cannot teach a horse to fly, and if you don't you know what's going to happen to you. And the guy say, well, yeah, but during that year things will be pretty nice. And they said, but that's not good enough. So what made you promise the king you can teach the horse to fly in a year? The guy said, I'm old, the king is old, the horse is old. The king may die before the year is over. I may die before the year is over. The horse may die before the year is over, or I may teach the horse to fly. Now maybe family farms and these smaller operations can survive. My saying that I believe they won't is not going to make it happen. But everybody knows that if I am a shoemaker, to take it away from agriculture, and it costs me $30 to build a shoe and I can sell that shoe for $20...