proposition, I simply would prefer the one that allows the easiest access to the subsidy and the cutting back of the subsidy, if it should show that it's not working. Having said that generally, I'd like to pose a question both to Senator Wehrbein and to Senator Wickersham and invite them both to respond.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: In which order?

SENATOR BEUTLER: Oh, we'll have Senator Wehrbein first.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Wehrbein, would you yield?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes.

SENATOR BEUTLER: I don't, obviously don't have any farmers in my district, but there is a lot of investment that goes on in this city, as it goes on in Omaha, and some of those areas of investment are, indeed, capital intensive lines of business, areas of work. If you sat down and thought about it, you could think of a large number that are capital intensive and very, very hard for a single individual, no matter how old, and in particular for a beginning person, to get involved with. My question is, what would I say to my business people or to my young business person who is wanting to get started in a capital intensive business? What would I say to him as to why we're subsidizing one particular capital intensive form of beginning entrepreneur and not all of them? I mean it seems to me that if we were going to do this type of bill that it ought to be related to the capital needs of...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR BEUTLER: ...the particular form of business that we're interested in and then make it applicable to everybody who has such a need, rather...rather than picking out a particular business, unless one can hypothesize some particular need or some reason to distinguish a young farmer from a young entrepreneur in another capital intensive business.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: I am going to run out of time before I can give you a proper answer. How much time is left?
