this looks like a 350-person convention or not. And that's one of the tools that they use. So they have a...first, they have a confirmation in the original contract. Secondly, they have the people on site that sort of check on that. And third, they have the state that oversees what the convention center says to the turn-back mechanism as to how much they are entitled to receive. From my perspective...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Before you lose...

SENATOR LANDIS: Okay.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Before you lose me...

SENATOR LANDIS: Yeah.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...the only thing in writing that you can go to to check this would be the registrations.

SENATOR LANDIS: We mention registration here.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: When you say people are registered.

SENATOR LANDIS: We mention registration here.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But there are other ways you could do it?

SENATOR LANDIS: In the auditing function...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But I meant what they would look at. Let's not get to the auditing function yet.

SENATOR LANDIS: Okay.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I want to see how we're going to establish how many of these people are from outside the state. How would you do that at the site?

SENATOR LANDIS: If I was an organizer of a convention and this, by the way, is silent in the bill. But if I was the organizer of a convention, I would have a registration form. I would have that...I would take registration and then I would have a
