SENATOR CHAMBERS: I'm asking you for it. When can I get it?

SENATOR VRTISKA: Well, how soon you want it?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I want it as soon as possible, and I don't mean a loan, I want you to give it to me. Will you give my $900? Let's be honest now, you're not going to give me nine...are you married?

SENATOR VRTISKA: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you want to stay married? (Laughter)

SENATOR VRTISKA: I'm planning on it, yes, I can't...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR VRTISKA: ...afford to get a divorce.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: When was the last time you bought your wife something that cost $900?

SENATOR VRTISKA: Ahhhh...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: It's been a while, huh? (Laughter) Now, what do you think will happen if she finds out you gave me $900, just as a result of this discussion?

SENATOR VRTISKA: She'll kill me, that's what.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Right. And then what would happen to the estate? (Laughter)

SENATOR VRTISKA: Well, I guess, somebody would get some...the county would get some tax money.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: My time is up, but I wish I could...maybe...well, I have an amendment up there, and then I can continue. Thank you, Senator Vrtiska.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Further
