to provide effective mentoring services to young people in the state who are at risk for alcohol and other drug use, teen pregnancy, school failure or dropping out of school, and juvenile delinquency.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, it's one thing to say what they are aiming at but what...of what does the mentoring consist? In other words, mentoring, I presume, is a word that describes the interaction between this wise person and the one who is not so wise. Isn't that what the mentoring will consist of?

SENATOR BRUNING: Yes, similar to you and Senator Tyson.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, the younger is the wiser in that particular situation but, at any rate, we may mention the areas of concern, let's say teen pregnancy. Maybe they would hire mentors who would say don't talk about birth control, don't talk about any of that, you talk only about abstinence. And if you, as a mentor, mention anything about birth control, your program is not acceptable. They are dealing with teen pregnancy, but they're dealing with it based on a certain ideology. Wouldn't that be true, if the example I gave is accepted on its face?

SENATOR BRUNING: Senator, I don't believe we can cover every possible contingency.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I'm not asking you to do that. I'm asking you to answer a question. If you don't understand it, I'll repeat it, or if you'd rather not answer it, I won't ask it again?

SENATOR BRUNING: I disagree with your premise.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So you think that if they would tell this person who is a mentor to speak only about abstinence but not about birth control, that would be an acceptable approach under your view of what this positive mentoring would be?

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One minute.

SENATOR BRUNING: I don't think they would tell mentors that.
