down, or hopefully...maybe we could scan it or do something with it and get it down to this...the centralized collection point and, thereby, get this disbursement back out. It's tough when you're dealing with an area like mine where we have counties of a thousand population total and then you have a county like Douglas County that handles 40, 45 percent or some such amount, or the total child support cases in the whole state in one county. So we've got a wide variety of needs and so on and services that we have to address. That's what makes it so really tough in western Nebraska and that's why I assume that most of those counties out in my area are not on these programs. They just...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Time.

SENATOR BAKER: ...don't have a use for them. Thank you.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Baker. Senator Hartnett, on the Kristensen amendment.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Mr. Lieutenant Governor and members of the body, Senator Janssen, could I ask you a question or two?

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Janssen.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yes.

SENATOR HARTNETT: I think earlier in some of your statements and so forth, I think you said that 53 of our counties have a particular computer system. We have 93 counties. That leaves 40 with others, some system. Senator Quandahl talked about, you know, Douglas County was kind of an island unto itself, I believe. If we go to this centralized system, and maybe you're not the person to ask, but if we go to the centralized system can we...can all of this mesh together, in your opinion, or do we need...do we need all the counties on the same...on the same page as far as computers are concerned? So...and I think maybe Senator Beutler has some questions or maybe might want to make some comments too, if you...

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yeah. Well...
