I going to do on this particular issue? And I think you have to sit back and it's an individual decision. But we have these competing factors. We have the fact that obviously smoking is not a popular thing with many people. It affects them both physically and otherwise, and so there is the inclination on our part to want to control the use of that by limiting certain areas. But...so we have the concern then as far as the smoker is concerned. We're mandating an awful lot of activities that people do. And I think that we have to ask ourselves, is it healthy for us as a Legislature to continually mandate activities of people--this the way you should conduct yourself; this is the area in which you should do it? And I think we just have to look at that philosophically and say, is this the way that we...is this the message we really want to send? The other thought is that is this not being taken care of, or will this not be taken care of by the business itself? Businesses respond to what people want. And if you have an area where there is smoking, they usually go tell the management, hey, I don't want that area, I'm not going to come back here if you don't correct this situation, so management ropes off certain areas, or maybe eliminates smoking entirely. In many of the smaller places they've just eliminated smoking completely and that's being responsive to the concerns of the customer. So I think that there's a question, are we going to say that big brother knows best here and that we will mandate this, or shall we leave that up to business to see that it can accomplish this result? I just ask these questions because I think they are at the heart of what we are talking about doing. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Pederson. Senator Thompson, on your bill.

SENATOR THOMPSON: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, members of the body. We are asked why we should take a look at this particular area for expanded regulation. And we regulate a lot of things for public safety. We regulate motor vehicles, we regulate the water, we regulate air, and this is just another aspect of what is our responsibility, I believe, to look at, as legislators, to increase public safety and the health of the public. Interestingly enough, the debate in 1979 on this...the first time the Clean Indoor Air Act passed, has a lot of those same arguments. In fact, reading from that, this is going to sound
