ought to have the restaurant folks...I mean that's their own private business. You know, it's their restaurant, it's not the state of Nebraska's restaurant. You know, I don't know where we have to come off saying that we have to tell, you know, every private business how to run it. The best way to do it is just...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR HILGERT: ...to vote with your pocketbook and say, I'm not going to frequent your restaurant, it's too smoky in there, it stinks, it's bad for my kids, it's bad for my asthma, I'm not going to go into your restaurant.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR HILGERT: And if the huge number of Nebraskans who are concerned and see this as a hot button issue for them for this year, do that, boy, it will...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time, Senator Hilgert.

SENATOR HILGERT: ...it will almost be like having the emergency clause on it. So let the free marketplace and the restaurateurs have their opportunity. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Preister, on the advancement of LB 750, followed by Senators Chamber, Senator Suttle, Senator Aguilar, and Senator Schimek. Senator Preister.

SENATOR PREISTER: Thank you, Honorable President. I rise to, I guess, reiterate some of the things that Senator Thompson said. One of the things was the percentage of people who, at one time or other, have worked in restaurants. That was, other than doing some greeting card sales when I was in the sixth grade that I got out of a comic book, my very first job was washing dishes in a restaurant in my neighborhood. Working there was somewhat of a necessity for me at the time. Even though I would have preferred to just gone to grade school full time, it certainly didn't hurt me. But working there I was exposed to a lot of secondhand smoke, even though I didn't want to be; so are a lot of other people currently working in restaurants, people
