January 31, 2000 LB 175

ability, true ability is not respected and it is not encouraged to grow. If young people and anybody else in large numbers were taught to think, form judgments and trust their judgment, those who rule could not rule. They need everybody to conform. They need everybody to be just another brick in the wall, and they will play that role. And it's why the professors can get away with what they do at school,...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...and the politicians can get away with what they get away with every four years or every two years, whenever the election comes. People know that the politicians are not going to tell the truth. They know that what is promised is not going to be delivered on. Nevertheless, the identical problems...promises are made year after year. George Bush, Senior said, read my lips, no new taxes. George, Junior says, I won't raise taxes, so help me God. Same verse but in a different package, that's the way it goes.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Chambers, you're recognized to close on your reconsider motion on FA280 to part two of the committee amendments to LB 175. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Mr. President. Members of the Legislature, at this point I should say, now for the rest of the story, but I'm not. I didn't know until a couple weeks ago that Paul Harvey is a preacher, an ordained preacher. I knew he preached, but I didn't know he was an ordained preacher. And he does have a way of telling a story, even when you know what the outcome is going to be. The way he pronounces his words, his inflections, his pauses, he knows how to get people to pay attention. But he gets tiresome after a while. And for me, after a while is after the third one. Now on this bill we're approaching the point where a cloture motion can be made. Will the Legislature vote cloture? I don't know. Do I care if the Legislature votes cloture? No. Do I think they ought to vote cloture? It's not for me to make that decision for anybody else. Each person may...must weigh what it is that we're dealing with and make a decision. But this good time that we have now will not be possible the farther we go into the
