this system now. You know the integrity that ought to be present in the judiciary and the legal profession. And when we find a judge who has so many times committed acts of immorality by anybody's standards, see, as the song, "What's It All About, Alfie", there was a line that said, "something even nonbelievers can believe in", and that which even nonbelievers can believe in is a standard for judges which is higher than that of the ordinary person or even a lawyer, and the Nebraska Supreme Court has made that explicit statement time after time after time. So while the lawyers sit back and grouse about how incompetent Empson is, just as a judge, while other people cluck and shake their head, I, who am the villain, who am the incarnation of evil, must assume the role of showing the righteous how they ought to do their job, who takes more seriously all the pronouncements of righteousness than those who profess to believe those things. So this rat, about whom I've read...let me apologize to the rats and other rodents, I cannot compare him to anything without offending and insulting whatever I would compare him to, except perhaps an anthrax bacillus, because he has the same survival capability. It's hard to kill that bacillus, hard, almost impossible, but it can be done, I presume. I don't know what would happen in a contest between Empson and an anthrax bacillus. If you were going to say which one is the most virulent and hurtful to society, Empson would win hands down, because the anthrax bacillus would say...

SENATOR COORDSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...I'm acting in accord with my nature, you know what I am. Empson would say I flew a false flag and I know what I'm supposed to do, but I'm going to tell the society and the judiciary to go to Hades, and they're going to swallow it; but, brothers and sisters, not I. And after I've drafted my complaint, I'm going to share it with you all. And I know there are a lot of you who just throw these things in the trash, but it's going to be grist for my mill and something that I will discuss on other bills. But that's all that I'll have to say on this one and I will not impede the bill's progress.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Thank you, Senator Chambers. There are no further lights on. Senator Cudaback, to close on LB 922.
