phrases in here talking about their responsibility. In terms of being a convenience factor I think it's great, but I think it's even better because it gives you the opportunity to bring suit in this state, to access our laws. Now maybe...maybe other states, and I think most do, have lemon laws and consumer fraud protections, but what are the chances of you, as a Nebraskan, going over and convincing the Missouri Board of Examiners to pull the bond of one of their dealers? That isn't going to happen. You're really not going to have a very good fighting chance to make that work. What are your chances as a Nebraskan...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: ...accessing the Nebraska system for a bond for the lemon laws for some of these consumer protections? Much greater, because you actually can have some hammer. You can appear here and, you know, you'll probably come...go talk to your legislator about what a shoddy transaction. This probably isn't going to prevent some of the problems, but what it does do is, if you have a problem, gives you a greater recourse than you've ever had before.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time, Senator Chambers...or Senator Kristensen. Sorry about that.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One of us should be deeply insulted. I'm not sure which one. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Kristensen. Senator Chambers, you're next to speak on AM2348 to LB 1019 (sic--1018).

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, the first thing I want to make crystal clear to everybody on the floor who may be interested and to the people in the lobby who may be interested, I am not opposed to what we have been told the purpose of the bill is. I want to be sure that the language we put into the law accomplishes that purpose and that purpose only. I want to be sure that through inadvertence we do not prevent existing dealerships from conducting business which they currently can conduct under the law. So I've been discussing this with Senator Bromm and my feeling, and I think his too, is
