PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Janssen.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Yeah, thank you, Senator Kremer. When you talked about you couldn't market that old animal, well, you give me a hog and the only thing I'll lose out of that hog is the squeal, because I won't be able to market the squeal, but you can market everything else.

SENATOR KREMER: And at a...

SENATOR JANSSEN: A good butcher will take care of the whole animal.

SENATOR KREMER: And at the price, what would make it practical.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Oh, absolutely.

SENATOR KREMER: Okay.

SENATOR JANSSEN: You know, you get...you've got...everything can be marketed.

SENATOR KREMER: Because you have hides and things like that too that...

SENATOR JANSSEN: I'm sorry, speak into your mike.

SENATOR KREMER: Okay, I'm sorry. You have the hides and things like that too that you could...

SENATOR JANSSEN: Absolutely.

SENATOR KREMER: Okay.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Those are all marketable.

SENATOR KREMER: Okay, thank you very much.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Um-hum.

SENATOR KREMER: Senator Robak, one other question. On the
