SENATOR D. PEDERSON: In a sense, I'm saying that. But what I'm...the way I'm saying it is that the same people that are operating that program are going to operate the program in Nebraska. So, I think you have a measuring stick. If we took some person that was operating a different program in a different jurisdiction, those numbers would be absolutely inconsequential. But I think they're consequential, if you have the same people managing a program there that are going to manage the identical program in Nebraska. I think you can have some assurance of the validity of those numbers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And I'll have a chance to go into this more, because I'm not through yet, but I won't prolong this because there's not enough time. Thank you, Mr. President.
