through the mail.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And what are the liquor purveyors concerned about? Level with me.

SENATOR JANSSEN: All right. They testified that they thought that it was unfair that the taxes weren't being paid on liquor coming in.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: If this bill doesn't pass, what percentage of the liquor purveyors do you think would go bankrupt?

SENATOR JANSSEN: None.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So why do we have this bill, since they're not the ones really pushing it?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Because there are taxes that are not being paid.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Are there taxes...

SENATOR JANSSEN: It's a revenue bill.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...are there taxes not being paid when you buy something from the Franklin Mint?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Franklin Mint?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yeah, they sell all kinds of items. They sell plates, dishes. I bought an hourglass from them for several hundred dollars.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Did you pay a tax on it?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No. So why aren't you trying to get a law for that?

SENATOR JANSSEN: Well, if you...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Time.
