point in time if we don't get anything, then we wait and come back next year. Let me just say, I think two years ago we wouldn't have even attempted this. Last year we thought about it and said, no, the votes aren't there. But the longer and the more OPEC messes with us, the supply of gasoline becomes unsure and the environmental benefits of the ethanol product, the stronger we become. So if we don't do something this year, I think we can do something next year and we can probably do more than we could have done this year. I do think it's important that we get the MTBE ban and I do think it's important that we pass the amendment that Senator Beutler has on clean water. You know, farmers are a funny lot. We complain a lot, we're not organized, we don't even want to use our own product, it seems like. And then we go to the coffee shop and why isn't the government idling acres? You know, I'm of the opinion that supply management isn't the answer; maybe short term it does the job, but we've got to have a...we've got to have a place to market our crops. And, boy, the potential for this is tremendous. If it's not Nebraska, it's California; it's not so on and so forth. So I guess I'd like to move the bill. We're trying to work on some things that will work for everybody, but...and I think it's real important that I not dig my...draw a line in the sand and say, let's just go home with nothing because we need the MTBE ban and we need Senator Beutler's water quality bill amendment. So we'll be talking here very soon, trying to work something out. It probably won't be what I wanted but that means we'll have something next year. If I would have gotten what I wanted, I wouldn't have been here next year. So...but that's the way the process works and, Senator Wickersham, certainly I hope the body votes down your amendment. (laugh) If that doesn't happen, why, I mean, nice try. But your area of the state is not as directly involved in this as a lot of the other areas of the state, and we understand the support for this is weak in the Panhandle. It's because you don't grow a lot of corn and you don't have ethanol plants out there. Your awareness of it is not. But where there's ethanol plants and farmers are becoming aware of the benefits, and I do believe there's a 20 cent increase in the price of corn right now because of ethanol plants in the state of Nebraska, that means less government subsidies or less set asides, one way or the other. We haven't gone back to set asides for a while. So I really think we need to be exploring the ways to increase the
