officials have to make.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Right.

SENATOR COORDSEN: So sometimes we get confused in that. But in that...in this amendment that's before us this morning, current law requires a reporting of all of the expenses. And this is by a lobby or a lobbying group or a prin...

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Or a principal.

SENATOR COORDSEN: ...somebody representing a principal. Okay. Current law is two-part. One is that if the attendance of...an official who the current law applies to is in attendance, then that portion of the expenses that relate to the attendance of the official is only that that...the only thing that's required to be reported. Farm Bureau convention was mentioned for an example. The other side...where all 49 members might get an invitation and 2 or 3 might go. The other side is a meeting where the express purpose of the meeting is for lobbying members of the Legislature or government. And in that case, all of the expenses are allowable as lobbying expenses. Does this amendment change that relationship at all? You understand the difference between the two reporting systems? Today, as I understand today's process, if the purpose of a meeting is to lobby members of the Legislature, to use an example we understand, then all of the expenses can be reported.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Right.

SENATOR COORDSEN: If it...if the attendance of a member of the Legislature is incidental to the meeting, everyone was invited, a few show up, most principals, or the people representing them, report all of the expenses as lobbying expenses when in fact the only thing that needs to be reported is that portion that relates to the number of members in attendance.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: That is my understanding.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Is that changed by this in any way?

SENATOR SCHIMEK: It is changed, yes, in that the only thing
