SENATOR CHAMBERS: Could you turn Senator Bromm's mike on so that I can hear what he says. Senator Bromm.

SENATOR CUDABACK: It is on, Senator. Speak into the mike, would you please. We want to hear you, Senator.

SENATOR BROMM: Oh, yes. (Laugh)

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I still...wait a minute. (Laughter) Okay, let me ask the question again. Do you still support the amendment of yours that we adopted yesterday based on your persuasiveness and conviction?

SENATOR BROMM: No.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you still support that?

SENATOR BROMM: Do I still support the amendment?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yes.

SENATOR BROMM: No, no. I've been educated and released.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: How were you released and by whom?

SENATOR BROMM: (Laugh)

SENATOR CHAMBERS: There's a lot of mysterious things going on around here.

SENATOR BROMM: Oh, okay. Well, after the meeting that I attended with Mr. Holsapple and discussing the actual workings of that amendment, I went to Senator Kristensen this morning and told him my concerns. And he said, I understand if you learn something that changes your mind you should be free to do that and I release you.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Oh, now I understand. Okay. Now this person, I keep hearing this "Hol" person. How do you spell his last name if you know?

SENATOR BROMM: H-o-l-z-a-p-e-l (sic).
