FLOOR DEBATE

January 29, 2003 LB 122

eat lunch, they're poor. What about the people who don't have a lunch, who don't have a dinner, who don't have a breakfast, who know what hunger means? Not just having a little more time pass before you eat that meal that you really don't need for your health, but feel that sense of hunger...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...because you have nothing to eat, you don't know where you're going to get anything to eat. People on this floor don't know what that is, and they probably don't know any people like that. It's too bad we have to personally experience something before we can understand it. I think I'm as healthy as anybody on this floor, but I'm very sympathetic and empathetic to those who are not. And maybe because I have health, I can feel so much in the way of sorrow for those who don't have it. Some of you all don't know what it means to just not have pain, to be able to take a step and not be conscious of the fact that you're walking because each step does not remind you, by way of a pang of pain, that something is wrong. And in this situation, I'm going to use this bad...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...bill as an opportunity to explain why I feel the way I feel on these things.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. You've heard the opening on Fall49 offered by Senator Chambers to LB 122. Open for discussion. Senator Beutler, following by Senators Schrock, Wehrbein, Janssen, and Chambers. Senator Beutler.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Members of the Legislature, I feel about as strongly in favor of this bill as Senator Chambers feels in opposition to the bill, and there are a number of important things to discuss. By the way, Senator Chambers, the giant in the story of "Jack and the Beanstalk," I always took some comfort from that story because, as you know, after the words "fe-fi-fo-um" comes the phrase, "I smell an Englishman." And in the wishful logic of a small child, I thought I escaped because I was an American. So I don't know how the giant story
