FLOOR DEBATE

February 19, 2003 LB 161

SENATOR JANSSEN: Okay. But there actually...I would, you know, I'm looking at what is happening in...throughout the whole state, especially in the western part of the state where a lot of retail stores are not existing any more. The small...some towns lose their grocery store and nobody will come in and inspect. I would think that the numbers of those scales, those devices would go down rather than going up in that particular area.

SPEAKER BROMM: One minute.

SENATOR JANSSEN: And you also have a lot of the grain marketers where they have the big platform scales, some of those are going by the wayside, too. So, you know, I need to look at this a little more, Senator Kremer. I have some concerns.

SENATOR KREMER: Okay.

SENATOR JANSSEN: So I'll sit down and read the rest of the bill, and I may have some more questions. Thank you.

SENATOR KREMER: Okay.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Janssen. Is there any further discussion on LB 161? Senator Baker.

SENATOR BAKER: Thank you, Mr. Speaker and members. I also have some concerns with the bill here, and it's no surprise to Senator Kremer. I visited with my seatmate here. But we have businesses that are inspected by these state inspectors, and I honestly...I know for a fact, having been around there, that there could be some efficiencies made in this whole process. When they come out and inspect our fuel pumps, one day they will check the gasoline pumps, and the next...they won't check our diesel islands the same time. They got to come back another day, and this has been an issue with us, and we've talked to them. They say we don't have the right volumes of tanks and contamination problems and so on, but these are issues that I honestly think we could be made a whole lot more efficient than what they're doing. Our employees get into the game they play with the food inspectors out there. And without giving away our
