to examine that. And, again, once we open the door, as another speaker said, the door becomes...

SPEAKER BROMM: One minute.

SENATOR JENSEN: ...open, and if we have an interdiction zone and we say there is only going to be five casinos, until the racetrack gets theirs, every bill there will be introduced to expand into the racetracks. Once we get it to the racetracks, then we need to expand it further on. It will not end. It will just continue going on and on and on. Again, once you open the door, the door is open. Every time there will be more bills to expand it even further. It is interesting, you know, we've all received the letters from the Compulsive Gambling Association in Nebraska that they need more money. By the way, there is nothing in this bill that says that that's going...that there is going to be any dollars for either treatment for those who will become addicted to gambling. And by the way, there is a number of people in our state already addicted. Casinos...

SPEAKER BROMM: Time.

SENATOR JENSEN: ...are a convenient thing.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Jensen. Senator Cudaback.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Mr. Speaker, members, if there was ever an issue, if there was ever an issue that was a no-win for a politician, this is it. I think we've all been around. I don't mean anything by that necessarily either, but there is a lot of issues out there. But I've been to many doors, I've been to many cafes, I've been to many of this, many of that, and of all the issues ever brought up, whether it be water, whether it be taxes, or whatever, I think this issue is brought up more than any other issue. And I talked to some colleagues about that. This issue comes up, what are you going to do with gambling? What are you going to do? Why? I don't know. Maybe they're all gamblers at heart, maybe they all want to see something passed. But many of them absolutely say when you say, well, I'm going to let the public decide this here. And you try to read their minds and say I want to be with this person. You don't
