February 27, 2003 LR 14

the city, county lottery, keno, the lottery, raffles, bingo, as well as pickle cards; $266 million was gambled...was wagered in the state of Nebraska. The revenue off that $266 million is $5.7 million. If I look at the proposal before me, and I look at the dollars that are going to be generated, and I figure out where all these are going to go...these were all well-meaning programs, I'm sure, in Iowa. But I'm thinking that some of these groups that are in favor of these gambling proposals stand more, probably, to lose than they do to gain, unless, there's the key, unless we allow them to put in, say, video slot machines, or other things, in locations throughout the state. So now we have a situation in the state of Nebraska where we're trying to figure out a way to do this correctly, if you will. And that is, we're going to build these casinos in these nice little places and contain them, when actually some of the proposals before us here might allow us...and I'm not sure...I haven't looked specifically at some of the proposals to this extent, but I know Senator Janssen's for sure would allow you to put in a video slot machine anywhere in the state of Nebraska if you had the enabling legislation to do that. The other question is, then, on Class III gambling, how you go about monitoring some of those things, and the negative impacts of that on our rural communities, and how that's going to be organized. I do want to also bring up a point that Senator Jensen brought up yesterday. And it's not the "show me the money" principle, but that is truly what this is about. But I think we have seen in the first comments I made that the money that we're seeing now in the state of Nebraska is very minimal as far as actual dollars generated to benefit the citizens of the state, versus the costs that are incurred by the individuals who wager it, both social cost and the actual financial cost to those families. But the idea, again, that if we're going to have casinos in the state of Nebraska, it's somehow going to help us in our financial problems...we've had this discussion in the committee, and I think it needs to be brought out to the people of the state of Nebraska. Even if we do put something on the ballot, the problem that we face this year with our budget isn't going to go away. In fact, we're not going to probably, in the unlikely event that the voters would approve what it is that the Legislature would put before them, we're probably not even going to see a dollar, one single dollar in revenue, till potentially
