FLOOR DEBATE

March 4, 2003            LR 11

think, under the doctrine of in pari materia, which means you read the whole together, you don't read it in its separate parts, you read the whole together, I'm trying to, as a basic premise here, establish whether or not these five simulcasting horse racetracks, or semblances thereof (laugh), since they only run a few races at some of them sometimes, I'm trying to figure out whether these five simulcasting horse race facilities are included in the eight. And if not, then I think we need to understand that, but I think we may need some clarification with regard to it. Because speaking for myself, if I'm going to be drug across this finish line, I'm probably a lot more interested if we're only going to have three more than if we're going to have the five we have now plus eight. And I'll raise the further hypothetical, so you can address it and tell me I'm wrong. If...I'm not certain you're going to be able to bifurcate the simulcasting horse race facilities that are authorized by section (4). In other words, I'm saying, gee, I don't think two of them will get to be a casino, or three of them be a casino, and then we have five. Because it becomes a question of, what is a facility, and what is gaming using "equipment, or a machine"? Note that it is...the conjunctive here is an "or." So it's cards or dice or equipment or a machine, for money or credit or a representative of value. So that now I think those five facilities either are...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: ...those five horse...did you say time, Mr. Resident?

SENATOR CUDABACK: I said one minute, Senator.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: I'm sorry. So it's a question of, are those five facilities that provide simulcasting, are they in the eight or aren't they? And if not, then because I've heard among my colleagues the concept that some of them ought to be, how do we get two of them to be a facility that is under section (5) but three of them are not a facility, even though they have machines and equipment, that aren't under section (5)? I see an issue here, which I wanted to lay out in good faith. And I'll raise some other questions that I have in subsequent time. Thank you.
