March 26, 2003      LB 46

imposition of administrative sanctions, it seems to indicate, although not as directly as...insofar as I can see, that whatever agreement is made between the probationer and the probation officer with regard to additional administrative sanctions...it seems to indicate that that would...that the agreement as to those sanctions would be in writing. That much is clear. I assume...

SENATOR BRASHEAR: Yes.

SENATOR BEUTLER: ...that it would outline clearly also, as part of that agreement, what the administrative sanctions are. Would that be accurate? Is that what it means, a copy of the report should be submitted, a report showing both the probationer's agreement and outline that to which he or she agreed?

SENATOR BRASHEAR: Yes, Senator Beutler, that's what it means.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. So it's all in writing, just as it would be if they had sent it to the court and asked for their approval.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: Exactly. It's all in writing. An agreement is meant to be the alternative to hearing and rehearing and a judicial decision.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. Thank you very much. That's...thank you for taking the time to answer all those questions on that section. And that's...those are the only questions I have on that section. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Were you through, Senator Beutler?

SENATOR BEUTLER: Yes.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Okay. Thank you. Senator Baker, on the Brashear amendment to the Judiciary Committee amendments.

SENATOR BAKER: Thank you, Senator Cudaback and member. I'm trying to tie this in to the discussion with community-based corrections and where we're going, although I know we're talking
