students, because of the congregate living. Now, does it mean that this will cover all of society? No, it's not. It's targeting a group of people who are more vulnerable. Does it mean that we shouldn't immunize those individuals? No, I'm not saying that at all. This is targeting because that's what the Center for Disease Control has recommended. They have recommended that we target incoming students into a congregate...living in a congregate type setting in our postsecondary educational system.

SENATOR REDFIELD: All right. Then my other question is involved with those who choose to live in a dorm, or live at home, or in other small group settings. They would not be covered by this bill. Is that correct?

SENATOR BYARS: That is correct.

SENATOR REDFIELD: So in effect, if there were any kind of penalty, it would actually just deal with whether they were allowed to live in our dormitories, rather than enrollment in the university? Would that be more accurate?

SENATOR BYARS: That would be more accurate.

SENATOR REDFIELD: Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Redfield. Senator Raikes, on AM1193.

SENATOR RAIKES: Thank you, Mr. President, members of the Legislature. I'm in support of the Bourne-Byars amendment. I think that, even if you are concerned about some of the issues Senator Chambers has raised, this makes sense, because it simply says that under the current framework of the bill that if a person got the information that the institution provided about meningitis and decided against a waiver, decided their preference was not to seek a waiver but rather to get the vaccination, that the information would include potential sources for those who could not afford the $80 for the vaccination. So at this point, I just want to make it clear that I do support this amendment. Thank you.
