man's ear off,...

SPEAKER BROMM: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...according to the story, if you believe it. And Jesus looked at him. He said, fool, what's the matter with you? You've been with me all this time, you don't know what I'm about? And he picked the man's ear up off the ground, brushed the dirt off, stuck it on the side of his head and he was as good as new. "Shazam," just like that. And told Peter, put up the sword at your side. He who lives by the sword shall perish by the sword. Peter said words might be all right in a word fight, but they're no good in a sword fight; I'll keep my sword. Now my time is up on this one. I'll have to continue the story the next time, because I'm trying to stir your pure hearts so we will do something for the poor in line with what you all say you believe. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Chambers, and you are next.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I could hardly wait. These guys took this man against whom nobody could really make anything stick. And I won't talk about the kangaroo trial. I want to talk about what happened to this guy who allegedly betrayed him. He went off and got to thinking about what he had done. Now here is this little fellow, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, 132 pounds, can't fight his way out of a wet paper bag and, yet, he has never done anything to hurt anybody. These politicians don't like him. The religious people don't like him. In short, all of the people I have no use for don't like him. So I put myself in league with them and I have their money. Well, now that I have it, I don't think that I want it. So he wanted to take the money back to those who had given it to him, and now all of a sudden these rats have turned righteous and they say, we can't take this money and put it in the treasury. And somebody wanted to know, well, why can't we? Why, it's the cost of blood. Well, they're the ones who took it out of the treasury to purchase the blood, so why now are they all of a sudden so righteous? Well, the purpose of that story is to make some things clear to people like me, to show how hypocritical these who profess religion are. They create a situation then,
