FLOOR DEBATE

April 16, 2003 LB 435

have to raise some of his prices. I can see that, Senator Cunningham. I think you would. And I think that, in some cases, in some of these very small communities with very few people, that could be devastating. I don't disagree with you at all. But I think most businesses, and this has proven to be time after time after time, make up that difference when that minimum wage goes up and they stay steady on their feet and they don't lose employees and they don't lose out on their profits and things go on. I guess, for me, the bottom line comes down to do we leave the whole burden for our economy on the backs of these people who are at the bottom rung of the ladder, the people who are making $5.25 or $5.15 or whatever it is right now? I mean, what we're suggesting here is not a huge...

SPEAKER BROMM: One minute.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: ...increase. But what it is, is it's something that that guy at that bottom rung of the ladder can look at and say, I have a few more pennies to pay childcare with or I have a few more pennies to buy food with. It's not much, but it's a start. And, Senator Cunningham, I don't know how to resolve the problem that you're having with this, because you know your own business better than I do or better than anybody on this floor does, but at the same time, there's got to be some compassion for the people who aren't as well off as you and I are, and some of the people who are at that economic level, through no fault of their own, through no fault of their own. Some of these are single moms or single dads...

SPEAKER BROMM: Time.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: ...who are...time?

SPEAKER BROMM: Time, Senator Schimek.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Oh, I'm sorry. I didn't hear the one minute. Thank you.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Schimek. Senator Tyson.

SENATOR TYSON: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Ladies and gentlemen,
