FLOOR DEBATE

April 23, 2003 LB 759

yeah, I will pull two or three stops and that will be enough to stop this bill and stop this session. And let me tell you how that will happen. You won't get 33 votes to shut me up, but if you do, you're going to have to advance this bill to Final Reading in the chaotic form that it's in now. And if you don't get 33 votes to shut me up, I will exhaust the rest of the session and all of you in the process, unless the Speaker decides that the rest of the session is more important than this bill. But if that decision is made, there is no vehicle to do what you all seem to think needs to be done to keep us from coming back for a special session. You all don't think. It takes me to do it for you, and I hope I'm irritating you. I'm hope I'm angering you. I hope I'm upsetting you by saying these things about you. But look at yourselves. Everything is put off until tomorrow. What do you tell your children? Brush your teeth tonight. Well, I can brush them tomorrow before I go to school. No, procrastination is the thief of time and I don't want you to become its aider and abettor. Brush your teeth before you go to bed.

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yes, ma'am. Well, that's what I'm saying to my colleagues. We ought to do this work now but you don't want to. Fine with me, but I will be there waiting for you on Select File. Senator Baker, I'm waiting for you. Senator Byars, I'm waiting for you. And I get tired of people referring to those substances that the poor might eat as a substitute for what you all call good food junk food. You all, I know, have not experienced poverty. You think somebody who eats candy is eating candy just as a lark. Some people don't have anything but candy and they get energy from it. You all eat it as dessert. Other people eat it as the only meal, potato chips and all the rest of it. So call it what you will, but you're going to be in for a fight. I intend to show...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...how the defender of the downtrodden defends. Thank you, Mr. President.
