FLOOR DEBATE

who wrote a letter to Senator Tyson about a problem he had, had to dredge back two years to come up with something in the way of a problem, and his carrying a concealed weapon would not have even addressed that problem. So the defenders of this flawed legislation have no valid arguments. Remember this; the flaws are not going to be corrected. Senator Tyson has a pending amendment, I repeat, which contains recommendations and suggestions I had put into amendments. Thereby, he is acknowledging not only flaws in the bill but my ideas are better than those in the bill and would improve it. So if you vote cloture, which I think would be very unwise, you are voting cloture on a flawed bill. You cannot amend this bill. You cannot change it. For worse, this is what you get. Notice I didn't say for better or for worse. This is only worse.

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: The Judiciary Committee has put in untold time and effort trying, trying to do what a psychiatrist could not do for somebody who has totally lost it; that is, to bring sanity out of insanity. Other bills that senators signed onto as a favor to the introducer wound up going farther in the process than some of those signers thought it would. Some people introduce bills as a favor and the bill went farther than they thought it would. So it behooves those of us who have respect for the system and concern for the public welfare to stop this bad legislation from becoming law. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Kruse, on the motion to recommit.

SENATOR KRUSE: Thank you, Mr. President and members. I will join Senator Schimek in her statement of offense at the mailing purportedly from the Gambling With the Good Life. I don't know who sent it, but it was in bad taste, and I would like to make it clear to the public who may look on this as a kind of cynical way that that's the first time in my time in the Legislature that anybody has ever offered me a nickel for my vote. That is not the way we do business and it is offensive to act that way. Meanwhile, back at the O.K. Corral, I would hope that those who
