school at Brigham Young. The soccer coach told her she could be a walk on. But in a paragraph in the third column, the second from the end, Machamer will enroll at Brigham Young University in January, and the coach there has offered her a chance to walk on, but Machamer, who has a learning disability, said she may play intramurals instead because of the toughness of the curriculum, which means that Concordia has snap courses, the curriculum level is not high, and Senator Stuhr...

SPEAKER BROMM: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...and some of these others boast about the good education these schools give. Well, this young woman with her learning disability was able to handle the work at Concordia, play soccer well enough to be a captain. Then they jerked the rug out from her and crushed her dream. Maybe it doesn't mean anything to anybody except her, but if this were Bob Jones University and she were black, I would understand that because they believe in the Ku Klux Klan, and George Bush supports them and all these other "Repelicans." But I didn't know Concordia was an off branch of the White Citizens' Council or the Ku Klux Klan. Now how in the world are we going to justify sending money, state money, to a school that we know practices religious discrimination? In the third column near the top is this paragraph: The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod...

SPEAKER BROMM: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...does not recognize LDS as a Christian religion. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Beutler.

SENATOR BEUTLER: I yield my time to Senator Chambers.

SPEAKER BROMM: Senator Chambers, you have five minutes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Beutler. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Members of the Legislature, when that appropriations bill comes up, I'm going to embark on my annual attempt to cut that money out of PEAP. The more I think about
