FLOOR DEBATE

January 13, 2004 LR 4

also. How much time do I have, Senator Cudaback?

SENATOR CUDABACK: About a minute, 30, Senator.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Senator Chambers, if you would like a minute and 30 seconds, I would be willing to give it to you. I think I've said everything that I need to say.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Janssen. Members of the Legislature, I cannot believe that this is 2004. This is the twenty-first century and I have people talking about walking across the plains and killing wildlife to feed their families. Why, that is so asinine that if an argument like that has to be given it shows there is no argument. That's what bothers me on this floor.

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: There is no intelligence. There is no logic. We do not serve the function we should of educating the public. We should not reflect ignorance, superstition and silliness. We are supposed to explain things to people and the main thing we ought to explain is the integrity and the sanctity of the constitution. And these people are running around here, talking about pulling fish out of the water or trapping whatever they trap and killing antelope ought to be put in the constitution, which shows to me a terrible, terrible indictment of the education system, if any of those speaking have gone to school anywhere. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers and Senator Janssen. Senator Schrock.

SENATOR SCHROCK: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, I have a copy of the constitution in hand here. It's dated 1875. It's 76 pages long. The first part is the Bill of Rights. Section 1: All persons are by nature free and independent, and
