Transcriber's Office
FLOOR DEBATE

January 15, 2004 LB 452

you?

SENATOR SMITH: I'm not sure, Senator Chambers. I would take your advice on that.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, this was not your mistake, then; it's the mistake of somebody who suggested you should do this. Who is that person?

SENATOR SMITH: I'm not going to get into names, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Oh, so now you want to throw up a cloak of protection, so we won't know who the person is. Um-hum. Do you feel that this was such a grievous error, or such an egregious blunder that the one who did it would be embarrassed if his or her name were brought forward?

SENATOR SMITH: Probably (inaudible)...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Is that why you don't want to tell us?

SENATOR SMITH: You're probably right.

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Then how can we count on anything that comes from you or your office, when we have something as jumbled up as this? I know who did it. There's a very nice cleaning lady who comes through, and she probably wanted the opportunity to draft a bill. Now, I won't hold it against her, because she's not an attorney. Is she the one who did it? Or are you too chivalrous to tell?

SENATOR SMITH: (Laugh) Am I shivering?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, are you too chivalrous? (Laughter) Are you too chivalrous? Let me get off that approach. What I'm trying to emphasize, members of the Legislature, is what I was talking about the other day, in terms of the constitution. The constitution is the fundamental law, and it protects every
