appropriation is transferred. The temporary transfer could theoretically be continually renewed and go on indefinitely. This condition requires a community to support the tax base of other political subdivisions, and may dramatically cause the lease cost to increase. No such requirement is imposed upon any other transfer in a community, regardless of the potential impact to the community. In addition to the obvious financial impact, there is recognition among various proponents that there is a legitimate question about the constitutionality of this condition. Then he goes on to say too: The proposals provide a new opportunity for objectors to attack the proposed transfers. Objections will now be allowed whenever the objector has perceived a potential impact to tax revenues or any potential economic impact within that county. This condition will require any applicant to expend more resources--any applicant being a municipality--to expend more resources to negotiate with the objectors,...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR BEUTLER: ...regardless of the legitimacy of their objections, and regardless of whether they are parties to the proceeding. Allowing all these complaints to be heard will have the expected effect of slowing or halting the proceedings, and certainly causing the proceedings to be more costly for the applicant. Due to the foregoing concerns, it is very unlikely that any municipality would undertake this process. Now I don't remember in the bill, Senator, whether these objections were ever addressed or not. If they were, they apparently went beyond the task force recommendations. And I know you don't have time to reply right now, but when you get more time, I would be interested in whether his concerns have been accommodated, or whether they should be accommodated. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Beutler and Senator...Senator Wehrbein, your light is next. And this will be your third time.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes, I would yield my time to Senator Schrock, if he wants it.
