FLOOR DEBATE

March 4, 2004

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: They need to be addressed.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. (Visitors introduced.) On with discussion. Senator Smith.

SENATOR SMITH: Thank you, Mr. President and members. I do want to add, for the record, that the Attorney General, who happens to be a friend of mine, I will say that trip, he was invited to come to Washington, D.C., by the U.S. Senate and some others, and no tax dollars were used to provide the travel for that trip, and I want the record to reflect that. I don't want to get into a match here between Senator Chambers and the Attorney General. However, I do want the record to be set straight, and that is that no tax dollars were used, no Nebraska tax dollars were used. And that is all I have to say. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Smith. On with discussion, the motion to suspend Rule 8, Section 5. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, in sticking with my king cobra philosophy, that the cobra wastes no venom on dead or fleeing things, I will not engage Senator Smith in a back-and-forth discussion. When a person makes a statement and simultaneously holds up the white flag of surrender and hightails it off the field of combat, I'm not going to pursue him. But he did leave some wiggle room. He said the money came...or the invitation from the U.S. Senate and others. I want to know who those others are, but I won't ask Senator Smith. But I'd venture to say they're people outside of this state. Why do I say that people such as Jon Bruning and those he represents are meddlesome? They're the kind who put their ear against the bedroom walls of people to find out what those adults are doing in their bedroom behind closed doors at night. They're the kind who put their eyes to people's keyholes to see what they're doing behind their closed doors. They're the kind who put their noses in other people's crotches because they have so much concern about how sexual activities are undertaken and
