FLOOR DEBATE

March 8, 2004 LR 14

it is the smallest number that we could arrive at. And I think that it's perfectly appropriate for us to substitute this motion, because it is such a small change. And I would urge the body to move forward with voting on the motion to substitute, and then we can talk about the number and we can continue to have the discussions about the relative merits of gambling. But I don't think it's going to change anything, because I think that we already have gambling. And so I would urge the body to support the motion to substitute. Thank you.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Brown. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, even though I'm opposed to this constitutional proposal, I'm going to support Senator Schimek's attempt to substitute what is before us now for the one that she doesn't want to deal with. But at the same time, I speak to point out that Senator Smith has every right to do what he's doing. When a person is opposed to an issue on the floor of the Legislature, he or she is entitled to do any and every thing at his or her disposal to resist and oppose that issue, and to try to seek its defeat, in the same way, although not to the same extent, that a person on trial is not required to defend himself or herself at all. The state must prove every element of the offense, and prove it beyond a reasonable doubt. There is nothing that requires a person to assist the state in winning its case against a person. There is no wisdom in somebody who opposes a proposition doing anything to advance that proposition or to clear the way for its adoption. I hope Senator Smith is successful. I see a bit of myself when I was in my rudimentary days, and I think the kid is coming along nicely. It just takes the right issue to bring it out. So I want those who are my mentees to understand that I might not be saying anything or not be saying much, but I've got my eye on you, and I'll give a report card at the end of the session. And I could name one or two others who have acquitted themselves quite well under the circumstances this session. But here's the question I would like to put to Senator Schimek.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Schimek, we know that sometimes
