everything. So what I've got to do is to try to civilize my colleagues and let the Governor know that he's in for a battle. Now others are afraid of him, but I'm not. And to save the least is what I want to do. I'm not talking about salvation. I mean the literal life. There was another person of English extraction who said that an English gentleman's compassion is not determined by how he treats his friends, but how he treats the lowest. Even that Jesus that so many people hypocritically pretend to care about said, if you do things for your friends, that's not anything. What people need to do is look at those scorned, rejected people. Based on the record, Jesus was a common criminal. Jesus sinned against the state and he was executed pursuant to the law. So it doesn't matter what all these people want to say after the fact about how he was innocent. I want to put on them, innocent men are not executed. The fact that the person was executed ipso facto means that he was guilty and worthy of the sentence of death and it ought to have been carried out. Then these churches want to say they believe what Jesus taught. And people don't realize that the Catholic Church officially and formally murdered more people than Saddam Hussein ever thought about murdering. So if Saddam is bad, what is the Catholic Church? And if you don't know the names of the...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...popes who presided over it, I can give you those names. They were some of the most bloodthirsty, devious, dishonest, murderous people who walked the face of the earth. But because they wore little red hats or funny clothes and had people bowing down to them, they were supposed to be good people. They were not. And people are not good today when they say the state should kill. The state does not have to kill. The state would be much better served to set an example other than killing. If the state and its representatives are the ones always saying there is too much killing, let the state cease its killing. Then maybe we would see some of it diminish throughout society. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Preister.
